One of the biggest nutritional questions I get asked is:

Does one night out really matter?

Much to my clients' dismay my answer is always YES!

When it comes to nutrition, consistency is key. Why ruin a week where you have stuck hard to your diet plan, visited the gym 3-4 times, and said no to all those tempting treats, by consuming a calorie-laden meal that will cause your blood sugar to spike and will often lead to other temptations?!

So what do you do?

Forgo any fun and never go out again in order to stick to your nutritionally healthy lifestyle?

No! That is simply unsustainable... the answer is to eat smart.

One night out does matter if you are going to throw caution to the wind and eat whatever you feel like. BUT if you're smart - and think about the nutritional content of the meal you're ordering and make healthy swaps - eating out can be as healthy as eating in!

The key is knowing the nutritional content of what's on your plate and to help you do this I have produced this helpful eBook packed full of great information about what to choose and what to lose.

The 'Ultimate Eating Out Cheat Sheet' has been specifically designed to help you make the right choices and make eating out less daunting.

So remember, healthy eating is not about depriving yourself; it's about eating smarter!

DISCLAIMER

All food items we have presented in this document were found during online searches; as a result some are missing specific components due to the companies involved not posting all the information. We decided not to try and fill in these blanks as it would be pure guesswork. When it came to restaurants, because there is such variability we chose to look at the major food types, pub meals, Indian, Italian, Chinese & Mexican along with a smattering of specific restaurants.

DRINKING

In 2015 scientists issued a warning over fizzy drinks, claiming they caused 184,000 adult deaths every year and advising they could lead to lifelong health problems. It's understandable as these are packed with sugar, chemicals and often have no nutritional value whatsoever.

Aside from being a huge source of hidden calories they have been linked to:

- Increased risk of cancers including prostate, pancreatic and breast cancer
- Raised risk of heart disease
- Risk of leading to diabetes
- Cause of liver damage
- Increased brain hyperactivity
- Speeding up the ageing process

Below we show the sugar content of some of the nation's favourite fizzy and soft drinks, as well as a few healthy alternatives.

COFFEE CULTURE

It is fair to say we in the UK have a love affair with the humble coffee bean, and as a result it is an industry growing by 6% annually with Costa Coffee, Britain's biggest chain, having over 1,300 outlets.

While there is nothing better than taking a break from the stresses of modern-day life to enjoy some coffee (or café) culture, it is a potential source of many hidden calories, especially if you are not thinking how you are drinking!

The figures below are based on Costa Coffee nutrition factsheet:

<http://www.costa.co.uk/nutrition/> but are broadly applicable to Starbucks, Pret a Manger and Café Nero too. So while we should never feel guilty about enjoying coffee, we should keep it in mind that when it comes to sugar and calories not all coffee is equal.

We all know fast food is bad for us, but it seems as a nation we just cannot help ourselves. So rather than never going to a drive-through again, why not simply select your meal sensibly. After all, we all deserve a treat every now and then.

We are just going to focus on the main meals rather than the accompaniments because when it comes to fries and drinks the advice is simple:

- Swap down a size, so from large to medium or medium to small
- Swap the fizzy drinks for healthy alternatives like sparkling water or black tea / coffee

When you are trying to watch what you eat the thought of eating out at a restaurant can be daunting. This is why we have put together some 'Quick Tips' to help you make better menu choices.

INDIAN

- Skip the appetisers, as most are high in fats and carbs and often deep-fried, so no pakoras or samosas
- Go grilled not fried; choose Tandoori options as the oven-grilled cooking is a far healthier option
- Stay clear of the high fat dishes, including paneers (high fat cheese), ghee-based meals (a clarified butter), and malaise (full fat cream)
- Go lean and swap lamb dishes for chicken or shrimp
- Say no to naan, choose roti instead
- Go light on rice
- Enjoy the benefits of turmeric with its antioxidant, anti-inflammatory and anticancer properties

ITALIAN

- Soup - your secret weapon - is the perfect appetiser to fill you up and minestrone is packed full of high fibre beans
- Choose seafood over pasta and pizzas; Italians are famed for their seafood independent of whether it is grilled, baked or stewed
- Red is best, or at least when it comes to pasta sauces; always opt for a tomato-based sauce over a creamy one
- If you are choosing pasta, opt for one with loads of sautéed vegetables and make sure you tuck into them first
- Go grilled, not fried or breaded
- Wholegrain pasta is the only pasta you should consider
- Ask for the dressing on the side, then you can limit your own amount
- Swap cake for sorbet and coffee

CHINESE

- Wonton soup is a great starter and will fill you up before the more calorific mains
- Go for steamed dishes or those that have only been lightly stir-fried
- Swap white rice for brown and never choose fried!
- Choose lean proteins like chicken and shrimp over beef and pork
- Don't be tempted by the overly sticky or sweet sauce options
- Opt for dumplings as a side rather than spring rolls
- Choose dishes heavy on vegetables, rather than those that are protein and noodle based
- Practice portion control when it comes to the All You Can Eat Buffet!

PUB MEALS

- Swap deep fried starters and mains for their pan-fried or grilled equivalents
- Ditch the starter and opt for extra vegetables and salads
- Say no to bread and rolls!
- Don't get hooked on bar snacks before you sit down to eat
- Choose ham, chicken and fish, over sausages, pies and ribs
- Have baked potato or mashed potato rather than chips
- Swap salad dressing for balsamic vinegar and olive oil
- If you are going for a pie, choose chicken and not steak
- Ask for sauces to come on the side so you can limit the amount you use

So having been battling my post pregnancy weight and old demons I finally feel like I'm winning and gaining bk my confidence. Whilst out on the weekend I found my one of favourite shops, Quiz. Now iv been looking for something like this for ages but had no luck so when it caught my eye as I walked passed I had to go back and try it on, this lead to the dilemma that their largest size was a 12 and I'm currently a large 14/16 (or I was) imagine my delight when on trying the size 12 it not only fit but looked good too! I literally bounced out of the changing rooms to show Ash whilst resembling the Cheshire cat 😊 safe to say this came home with me and gave me the boost I needed. I'm so glad I took charge of my body, I feel healthier and stronger again and my confidence is slowly growing again 😊
